Hydrolysis is a chemical reaction that breaks down a compound into its constituent parts. This process is essential in many biological and chemical systems, such as the digestion of food and the breakdown of polymers. Hydrolysis is often catalyzed by enzymes or acids, and it is a reversible reaction. The rate of hydrolysis is affected by factors such as temperature, pH, and the presence of catalysts. Hydrolysis is a fundamental process in many scientific fields, including biochemistry, chemistry, and materials science.
